

The Trout Fishing Song

Written by Jeanne Willis
Illustrated by Clare Elson

oi

oy

boys
annoyed
enjoyed

oi

oy

cowboy

oil

oysters

ow

ou

scout

pound

shouting

ow

ou

spouted

shouted

loudly

Tricky Words

any

many different

Let's

our

Tricky Words

that

for

There's

should

The Trout Fishing Song

Written by Jeanne Willis
Illustrated by Clare Elson

You can tell by my outfit
that I am a cowboy.

You can tell by my outfit
that I am a scout.

Let's put on our trousers ...
our trout fishing trousers.

Now let us go out.
Let's go fishing for trout.

Can I be the look-out?

Can I do the shouting?

If you see any trout,
you must shout.

I will shout!

“Cast out,” said Scout. “Cast out now for a trout.”

“The line’s out,” said Cowboy. “Shout out for that trout.”

Cowboys shout loudly but scouts can shout louder.

“Look out!” shouted Scout. “There’s a trout! There’s a trout!”

"That trout," shouted Scout, "is around and about. Around and about with a hook in its mouth!"

"We should cook up that trout," said Cowboy to Scout. "We should hook it and cook it and fry it in oil."

I bet you a pound it will spoil and go brown.

Said Scout, "We must hook it and cook it in foil."

“Fry me in oil? It is too hot!” spouted Trout.
“Cook me in foil? I will not stand the heat!”

"Try something different. Try oysters I beg you.
Oysters are many times sweeter to eat."

Alas for our boys, Trout spat the hook out.
Alas for our boys, Trout went on his way.

Were our boys annoyed? No, they both enjoyed oysters.
So sweet and so different they ate them
all day!

